Girl Getaways

If there was ever a time when brides celebrated an engagement with Jell-O shots, it certainly isn't now. That's why more women are seeking out upscale getaway packages that include everything from luxe spa days to white-water rafting adventures. We checked out three options and found girl getaways worth getting married for.

At Cordevalle, brides create packages with yoga, hikes in the nearby Santa Cruz mountains, or the quintessential spa day. Brides stay in one of the resort's spacious Fairway homes (think: giant slumber party with fancy nibbles, cocktails, and enough privacy to walk between suites in pajamas). Cordevalle can even organize movie nights with pizzas, s'mores, and truffled popcorn. Cordevalle, 1 Cordevalle Club Dr., San Martin, 408-695-4500, cordevalle.com

For brides looking for some pampering, Carneros Inn—an über-fabulous Napa Valley resort—is a more traditional girly getaway. The hotel's packages are perfect for smaller groups and include lodging, spa services, and other fabulous perks. Ladies spend the day at the resort's spa, enjoy the stunning Hilltop Pool, and finish up with drinks on the outdoor pavilion at the resort's restaurant, FARM. Carneros Inn, 4048 Sonoma Hwy., Napa, 707-299-4900, thecarnerosinn.com

Adventurous brides love the Girls on Granite climbing program at Yosemite. Two-night excursions include climbing instruction for all levels and accommodations at Curry Village or Tuolumne Meadows Lodge. The program also offers a unique social experience: At the end of the day, participants spend time together, creating one giant bachelorette party filled with adventure-seeking women. Girls on Granite, Yosemite National Park, yosemitenpark.com
